Development of Machine Learning powered microRNA target site prediction methods

Dr. Panagiotis Alexiou

This presentation will focus on the various approaches used to model microRNA binding to its RNA target sites. We will discuss the whole process from experimental techniques for data generation, dataset preparation, training schemes for deep learning applications, evaluation against the state of the art, and promising future directions of the research currently pursued by my group.