

Yiorgos Chrysanthou

Associate Professor
Department of Computer Science
University of Cyprus

Personal Profile

He has been an Assistant and then Associate Professor at the Computer Science Department, University of Cyprus since 2001. Before that was at the University College London, as a Research Fellow (1996-1998) and a Lecturer (1998-2001), part of the Computer Graphics and Virtual Environments group. He studied for his BSc in Computer Science and Statistics and for his PhD in Computer Graphics, at Queen Mary and Westfield College, University of London.

Research Profile

My research deals with 3-d graphics. Designing digital images electronically, that is, as well as virtual reality.

Here's one example: St. Lazarus church in Larnaka. This work also includes real-time rendering, visibility, crowd rendering and simulation, virtual and augmented reality and applications to cultural heritage".

Other interests

Yiorgos loves spending time with his Family in quite a few sporty ways. "Family is for me the most important thing in life. I try never to work on weekends which I devote to my family. We like going to the beach, even in winter. The kids love going camping".
